PARTISAN OBSTRUCTIONISM.

A more effective example of the evils of blocking a measure from purely partisan feeling could hardly be supplied than the present disgraceful block in the Albany Legislature. The greatest city on this continent and one of the greatest commercial centres of the world has to sit in absolute helplessness and eat its heart out over the spectacle of a faction in the Senate, led by a "Boss" politician, going against the wish and interests of New York City.

Could a stronger argument be presented of the marked undesirability of any partisan coloring to the World's Fair Committee than the dogged and irritating partisanship of these Albany obstructionists!

The people have met and in decided accents avowed their sentiments on the point. Liberal right-minded leaders of the very party in which the cross-grained partisans exist, and for which they pretend to be working, have deprecated the unseemly course which PLATT and his then, poor man? followers have adopted and maintained in spite of the popular outcry and vexation. Further comment on the situation accounts of the office is severely commented on. None of the rimors of fraud in the Department of the World's Fair is lost to New York, and the generous efforts of the town's or have had existence, is it expected that they will be uncarthed by such an examination? best citizens are frustrated by this small Achilles, then should the people re-member that it has a debt to be paid to habitants of the State, and the great city of New Achilles, then should the people re-THOMAS PLATT, and avail itself of the York must continue to suffer the injustice of infirst opportunity to square accounts.

RIGHTEOUS PAYMENT.

No better indorsement of the Weekly Payment bill could be desired than the selected to jewel the luck ring, a novelty intended for an Easter of cruze. of THE WORLD from enthusiastic workingmen. They are to be the beneficiaries of white silk slips embroidered and girdled with the measure if it is carried through, and silver.

their keen appreciation of what it means to them is the strongest reason that could be advanced in behalf of the bill.

Some things are so evidently wrong that it seems incredible that right reason can entertain a diversity of view in regard to them. The payment of workmen every week is simply to give the laborer his hard-earned wage when he has earned if. The only objection to it comes from the wealthy corporations and employers who look gradgingly at their myriad pennies and tearfully forecast the squandering of a few of them for simple justice.

The news of the day includes two items of interest, both of the same character. A young woman, in each instance, shot a man who had accomplished her rule, and shot to kill. In examples of this kind sympathy is often a damper to the full exereise of just judgment. No one would blame a young woman, or any person, from doing violence if accessary to a man guilty of physical violence of assault on her vartue. Is the man who begules by honeyed words and lying promises the trusting heart of a girl to the loss of her honor any better?

Yet it is the law's province to avenge the victim, and it should do it as fully as

The value of discipline received a beautiful proof in the tranquil, methodical way in which the four hundred little tota and children of the Orphan Asylum formed in line and marched quietly out of their burning home. Not a person concerned, from the humble Sister in charge to Rosser Jourson, the fourteenrear-old colonel who led the retreat. Pire, hundreds of children and a panic would have meant a ghastly horror. But thanks to strict discipline and coolneadedness, the panic was omitted.
